Nations not having nuclear weapons can buy reactors and use their nuclear program as a stepping stone to nuclear explosives.

A month before he was assassinated, Archbishop Oscar Romero wrote President Carter asking the U.S. to halt military aid. It is evident that since the [receipt of military aid in November] the security forces, with better weapons, and efficiency, have repressed the people even more savagely.

"There is not an 'energy crisis' as such in the western world. It is more a matter of there being a crisis of the western style of living."
